

How would I see myself in my perspective?

Bryan Jay M. Lumabas
BSIT 1D

In my self-introspection, it truly matters to me that every person is valued and beloved, to be honored with dignity, moral integrity and to live in longevity. We are born not just to live but also to walk through the Earth. Everybody has its own purpose in life. There's a lot of questions to ponder about everything as I aforementioned earlier, we're searching and seeking for answers. Who am I? Whom am I looking for? Whose belonging is this? Why is this happening? How does this thing work?

We only need to discover in a way we understand as we find out that we intake more sugar than salt, sometimes compliments or an insult. We often used to relish sweets than spicy porridge, sometimes it tastes like life is bittersweet as if we're out of curiosity by digging deeper within the depths of a wonderful journey of our self.

I could be a philosopher like Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and many more. After all, it was easier said than done. Let's take a quote from various philosophers.

According to an ancient Greek philosopher Socrates, quoted that “An unexamined life is not worth living.” Gnōthi sauton means ‘know thyself’. We can have a meaningful life if you become virtuous and know yourself more inside out.

Seconded by Plato, an ancient Greek western philosopher, quoted that “The first and greatest victory is to conquer yourself, to be conquered by yourself is of all things most shameful and vile.” Means our self is complex, it requires us to function properly. Eternally focused on a soul or a spirit (gogo). Embodiment of a physical and ideal realm. How could you be yourself if you're not in charge of your own.

Another ancient Greek philosopher and polymath, Aristotle quoted that “You will never do anything in this world without courage.” Influenced by previous philosophers from time to time adapting their principles. You won't be greater if you don't have a strength or sláinte to carry on. Trust the process.

A Christian theologian and philosopher, St. Augustine quoted that “Faith is to believe what you do not see; the reward of this faith is to see what you believe.” We do wish to rise, we descend instead. We plan to build a tower that will pierce the clouds. However the foundation we lay is pride not humility.

An Italian catholic theologian and philosopher, Thomas Aquinas quoted that “We must love them both, those whose opinions we share and those whose opinions we reject, for both have labored in the search for truth, and both have helped us in finding it.” Truth set us free, it freed us from guilts and accusations. It's okay to be slapped in the face with a reality so many times rather than living a lie.

A Scottish historian, economist, essayist and philosopher, David Hume quoted that “Beauty in things exists in the mind which contemplates them.” A wise man once por favor in the evidence. Humans tend to hate, to love, to think, to criticize, to feel, to see, to ignore; all this is nothing but to be perceive what they pleases. Looks can be deceitful.

Remember that! Bòidheach.

A German central enlightenment thinker and philosopher, Immanuel Kant quoted that “Sapere aude! 'Have courage to use your own reason!'” Means dare to know the things you aren't familiar with. Try to step out of your comfort zone even when you feel upside down, there's always a reason. Fight for your rights. When something isn't right, it evades you from them.

A British critique of Cartesian dualism and philosopher, Gilbert Ryle quoted that “A person who has a good nose for arguments or jokes may have a bad head for facts.” An idiot man doesn't think he is vain. Minds are not bits of a clockwork, each minutes rotated 1 bytes per second at counterclockwise. A concept of mind. Arguing that he believed that self comes from behavior. We're all just a bundle of behaviors caused by the physical workings of the body.

A Canadian neuro philosopher, Paul Churchland quoted that “Science is the great antidote to the poison of enthusiasm and superstition.” Nowadays, in so many years to come. Future relies on the power of science, technology and inventions. His argument that the concepts and theoretical vocabulary we use to think about ourselves—using such terms as belief, desire, fear, sensation, pain, joy—actually misrepresent the reality of minds and selves. He also believe that materialism, in his theory nothing but matter exists.

A French phenomenological philosopher, Maurice Merleau-Ponty quoted that “Inside and outside are inseparable. The world is wholly inside and I am wholly outside myself.” True mon ami, ourselves consist between the inside and the outside. It cannot be separable. Those perceptions, and consciousness in relation to nature that connects throughout our bodies as a whole and you’re in yourself.

These are the philosophers that guide with ourselves to ensure that their theories about to ponder lucidly as dreams definitely. Which is, their theory of everything about self also implies to me.

To be honest, I don't know why is the first step was the hardest part to begin with. The most difficult part when situations are really out of hand. Anyway, in a nick of time you'll get used to it. When you are interested into someone and that someone also interested with someone else. A sad reality, likewise as karma. It always comes back to the sender. And now I'm paying the price. Have you ever been into something that you wanted to do but when you are going to do it then you forget. I really hated it with an instant regret. But now, I just jotted down in a note that in particular, we must respect each other as well as reconcile our individual differences. I certainly believe that everything is interconnected. Where communication is urgent these days more than ever. Intricately intertwined through human interaction as usual complexity of being a person. Each of us had a belief system to make ourselves prime, by all means.

Whereas determines the significance of our existence. Believing just the viewpoint of a man changes everything in a nick of time who believes they'll become, what they'll need to be. Even though somehow you need to blink twice in order for it to happen. Our doubts disregard those certain circumstances as if it dominates negativity against the positive mindset built in their personal perspectives.

Blessings, luck, inspiration and positivity are always there for you. Life, there's more than that, dreams, study hard, work, love. A cursed sickness, unfortunate events and heartbeats fade away. Fail miserably in between the peak of success and flopping at the same time is the most heartbreaking of all the suffering to have. It's been a long day since, back in the day the plague came and everything has changed.

Picture this: If you had united with your parents and your fiance on the same boat. You fulfill your dreams in your roller coaster adventure as you celebrate the good times and remember the nostalgic memories. In somewhat normal, sooner or later it's tragic that the boat accidentally rifts apart. Afterwards, your parents are old enough so they cannot swim and also your dearest one. Who's your priority? Are you going to save your parents first or you're the one to marry? So, it's up to you. Decision matters the most when time is ticking so fast. That's how important it is to know yourself better. In short, we, as a person, take risks in order to succeed.

To sum it up, self is a key to unlocking the mystery behind the door of opportunities. For us to understand our 'self' is pivotal by learning from our mistakes. I strongly agree with this notion. It was easier to be born a human rather than to be a good man. As long as your principles are intended for the greater good and never malign someone's reputation or compromise other lives. Then go for it. We often dive into the dangerous waters as you go, but be careful, don't go too far or you'll be drown. Take your time for you'll heal. Patience is a virtue that everyone must possess besides honesty. Nevertheless, self is everything. Most importantly, do not be afraid to start over again.

I was still hoping this time I could finish what I've started. I don't want to be a perfectionist, I just want to learn. I've only wanted to graduate when I was a kid. I rather rely on myself than others, it was just a disappointment and no self-improvement. I pray that whoever reading this will have a peaceful mind in their life.

God bless us all.

-Fin-